Twenty four years ago, when I was about a year and a half sober, I made a "cold" twelve step call on a man in my neighborhood because his daughter, a high-school student of mine, had begged me to help. "He's going to die," she had said, with tears streaming down her face.

When I arrived, Keith was propped up on the sofa, drink in hand. His skin was yellow in color, and his liver protruded from beneath his tattered robe. He listened to my A.A. pitch for a brief time, then he cut me off with an imperious wave of his hand saying, "I'm a Marine!, and Marines have willpower. I don't need a crutch like A.A. to lean on! I can quit anytime I want!" "Pardon me" I said, "You are yellow in color, and I can see your liver sticking out from under your bathrobe. You are going to die, Keith, if you don't do something about your drinking." He endured me for a few more minutes, and then dismissed me.

One month later, Keith died. My family and I attended the funeral, and as the service was about to end, Keith's little boy, J.J., approached the open casket. J.J. was about 8 years old at the time, and while we watched little J.J. at the casket, my own little boy, 9 years old, snuggled up tight against me in the pew. J.J. stood on his tiptoes and peered in at the waxed body of his father until his older sister came and swept him away.

Over the next ten years, the image of that little boy gazing at his dead father was to save my life countless times! On the days when A.A. didn't seem to be enough, when meetings seemed friendless and meaningless, when that feeling of "is that all there is?" would close in on me, I would remember Keith, and his poor little boy, and the memory would flood in on me. Then, I'd smile to myself and say, "Yes, A.A. is enough," and I'd go to the next suggested action.

Here it is the present day, and I'm now an "old-timer." Next week, Higher Power willing, I'll be giving J.J. a three year cake! Yes, that little boy who lost his father to the disease of alcoholism, stumbled into my home group one Thursday night three years ago. My sober daughter and son (the little boy sitting next to me in the church) grabbed him and dragged him up front to me. "Here's your new sponsee, Dad!" they said with huge smiles on their faces!

J.J. grabbed on to the A.A. way of life with both hands. He is an active, giving member of our fellowship. We think of him as a member of our family. Why not? After all, his father saved my life!

Literature Carries the Message, Too

"But what about the real alcoholic?" This rhetorical question read from the pages of our beloved "Big Book" set the stage for my recovery.

From the very start I had been a "hard drinker." In hindsight I realize that unlike some members, I had never had control over my drinking. No one was more puzzled than I by my lack of control when it came to drinking. The description of the real alcoholic was the first explanation of who I was that made sense, at least to me. The veil of denial was lifted with each sentence I read. I too had done absurd, incredible, tragic things while drinking. Relationships had been destroyed, potential was left unfulfilled, and hope had given way to despair. My lifestyle, my thought processes and actions were dangerously anti-social. When I walked through the doors of A.A. I brought these traits with me. I was what some members refer to as a low bottom drunk. As my disease progressed and my nerves were further tattered by booze, I too began to use a combination of high-powered sedatives and alcohol. I too began to seek out doctors that would give me morphine so that I might taper off. I could not deny the fact that the rough description of the real alcoholic was an accurate description of me.

Finally I knew what the problem with me was. I am an alcoholic. A real alcoholic. I know so because my story is in the book. Thank God. Our literature carried the message for me. In the privacy of a hospital bed I read the "Big Book" for the first time. There were no personalities involved that I could criticize or rebel against, just simple truth. I could either accept or deny it.

Our literature allowed me to belong, to be like you, a member of A.A.

When we give a "Big Book" away, or support H&I efforts to supply literature, we truly are being of anonymous service. An alcoholic in search of answers can find the solution within our literature. In a hospital bed, a prison cell or library, the A.A. Big Book and other literature carries the message at times far more effectively than we as members are able to do. Please support H&I efforts to distribute literature. Let part of your 12 step work be support of carrying the message through A.A. literature.

Confession of a Sissy

MY NAME IS DICK... AND I AM A SISSY!

All it took was one drunk driving arrest, one tiny little court card, one "nudge from the judge" to get me to stop drinking.

A little over four years ago, I "came to" in a rubble pile of Oleander bushes and picket fence with a natural gas geyser spewing behind me. I had left my favorite pub in Tustin before midnight and had gone to sleep in my van. I never intended to drive. I was nearly home, in Orange, when I came out of a blackout after the collision at about 2:30 A.M.

I was fortunate. I had not injured myself or anyone else. The owner of the Oleander bushes and picket fence and the Gas Company took exception to the fact that I had damaged their property. The police department took exception to the fact that I seemed to be extremely intoxicated. I was arrested and tested. I was now officially a ". 24 Deuce" (. 24 blood-alcohol level drunk driver).

I made up my mind that night that I had had enough and that I would never drink again. I managed that on my own until I was directed by the court to attend A.A. meetings for nine months with a court card. But ... was I an alcoholic or had I just had some bad luck?

I had never lost a job, been drunk at work or had an unsatisfactory job evaluation. I had been married for about sixteen years. I had a house, cars, children and toys. I had never before been arrested and had not had a citation since I was in college.

In meetings I heard people talk about being low-bottom drunks. I heard heart rending stories from people who had lost everything, sometimes over and over again due to alcohol use. I heard from people who were unable to stop drinking in the face of alcohol-induced poverty, loss of family, illness, injury, insanity and possible death. With my lack of significant alcohol-related problems, could I really be an alcoholic?

ABSOLUTELY!!

All the symptoms were there for me to see if I hadn't been drunk or drinking so much of the time. Once I was forced to stop drinking for a period of time, I could clearly see where I was headed. I was not performing up to my own standards at work. I was hurting my family and friends. My health was beginning to suffer and I was having financial problems.

I am here to testify ... I am an alcoholic! I am every bit as much an alcoholic as someone who has a "better" A.A. story than I have. The only difference is that I was captured before I could drink myself into the problems that were definitely in my future. I was ready to admit that I was an alcoholic, to attend meetings and to follow directions from people who had found a way to stop drinking "one day at a time." I have not found it necessary to take my drinking to the extent that I further damage myself or to further hurt the people around me.

I confess ... I am an alcoholic and I am a sissy. I guess I can never go on the "A.A. speakers' circuit"! I am too big a coward to pick up that first drink to continue the behavior that can "improve" my A.A. story.

My heart goes out to those who must continue to drink and to those who do A.A. on the installment plan by a series of "slips" and "returns". I thank God that I am a sissy. I thank God and other alcoholics like me for giving me the strength to remain in the fellowship.

AA BIRTHDAYS

Birthday Donations...

Many AA members celebrate their AA birthdays by sending a donation to Central Office. These donations help keep the doors of Central Office open, so that new members may get the same help so many of us have received. Some members send one or two dollars for each year of sobriety. Others make a personal donation monthly or on a quarterly basis. This month we'd like to extend thanks to:

Len B.	Costa Mesa	29 years
Frank A.	Not Shown	26 years
Paul M.	Laguna Hills	24 years
Ed M.	San Clemente	19 years
John K.	Huntington Beach	17 years
Les McD.	Garden Grove	15 years
Mary Ann O.	Huntington Beach	10 years
Mike O'B.	Huntington Beach	8 years

Happy Birthday!

Tradition of the Month

TRADITION ELEVEN

"Our relations with the general public should be characterized by personal anonymity. We think A.A. ought to avoid sensational advertising. Our names and pictures as A.A. members ought not be broadcast, filmed, or publicly printed. Our public relations should be guided by the principle of attraction rather than promotion. There is never need to praise ourselves. We feel it better to let our friends recommend us."

Ask Yourself...

1. Do I sometimes promote A.A. so fanatically that I make it seem unattractive?
2. Am I always careful to keep the confidences reposed in me as an A.A. member?
3. Am I careful about throwing A.A. names around—even within the fellowship?
4. Am I ashamed of being a recovered, or recovering, alcoholic?
5. What would A.A. be like if we were not guided by the ideas in Tradition Eleven? Where would I be?
6. Is my A.A. sobriety attractive enough that a sick drunk would want such a quality for himself?
